was killed and several men were wounded.
William Foy was shot and killed in the first engagement.
The bodies of both men were taken home.
Great excitement prevailed.
A workman named Wallace was fatally shot at Ninth street. He was removed to his home.
The workmen have built a fortification of steel bars on the river bank and over 1,000 men are within.
The crowd on shore is constantly increasing, and it is more determined than ever to prevent any landing from the boat.
All the trains are carefully watched and all means of entrance to the works are guarded by the men, and a desperate struggle is Before the second attempt was made to land, the officer in charge of the detectives announced to the crowd of workmen assembled on the bank that his men were Pinkertons, and that he would land them if he had to mow down everybody in sight.

He then ordered his men to advance, and as they advanced from the barge they were met by a shower of lead from the rifles and pistols of the workmen.
The officers fell back for an instant as if repulsed, but they were promptly rallied, and marching eight abreast endeavored to get ashore. They were driven back again, however.
It is not definitely known how many men are on the two barges. There are thought to be at least three hundred in the party, but some of these may be non-union workmen.

ANDREW CARNEGIE STEEL MILL AT HOMESTEAD AND VIEW FROM THE NORTH BANK.
Several of the Pinkertons were hit, but no one is allowed to go aboard and their loss cannot be definitely ascertained. It is reported that the captain of the tug is among the dead in the flotilla.
Already seven of the locked-out men have been killed. John Morris was killed in the last effort to land the officers, and at least six others were wounded.
The killing of Morris seems to have crazed the people, and men, women and children are running through the streets, crying for revenge and for blood.

LOSSES OF THE LABOR SIDE.
The killed on the workmen's side are:
JOHN MORRIS, shot through center of forehead, married, but no children, was a braver.
HENRY STRUGEL, aged twenty-one years, unmarried, shot through neck and killed instantly.
MARTIN FAY, a Hungarian laborer, shot through breast.
RUBEN FOREST, shot through the heart.
ANDREW STRUGEL, brother of Henry, shot through the chest.
MARTIN FAY, a heater, married and leaves five children.
SILAS WAYNE.
Following are the names of the wounded, but there are believed to be other casualties which have not been reported: WILLIS LOGGERS, dying, shot through legs and hips.
JOHN BITTA, shot through legs.
MARTIN MURRAY, shot through legs.
WILLIAM FRY, probably fatally.

something is done promptly there will be great loss of life.

Sheriff McCleary has decided not to send any deputies to Homestead until he hears from the Governor in answer to the following telegram:

"R. E. Patterson, Governor, Harrisburg: "Situation at Homestead very grave. My deputies were driven from the ground, and watchmen sent by mill-owners attacked.
Shots were exchanged, and some men were killed and wounded.
"Unless prompt means are taken to prevent further bloodshed and great destruction of property may be expected. The striking workmen and their friends on the ground number 5,000, and the civil authorities are unable to cope with them. Wish you would send instructions at once."
—W. H. McCLEARY."

ANOTHER VIEW OF THE STEEL MILL.

The Sheriff said: "I believe it would be suicidal for me to take my men there. We could not hope to cope with 5,000 men. I expect a reply soon, and will then know what to do. I think the Governor will at once

My brother and about seven others were hospital this afternoon he said:

"I had charge of these men, and they were picked up in Chicago and New York. They were a very fair lot of men. They numbered 200 all told, and I gave them strict orders not to shoot until they were fired upon.
"When we proceeded to land the whistle blew and immediately the strikers commenced to shoot. To protect ourselves we had to return the fire, seven or eight of our men are hurt, but I do not know their names."

WEST PORTION OF THE CARNEGIE PLANT.

"I am here to see if this matter cannot be arranged, and I am hopeful this day will see the trouble ended. I believe the whole question can be peacefully arranged and no more bloodshed follow. The attorneys for Carnegie and the Sheriff are now in consultation, and I hope for good results."
Mr. Lovejoy, Secretary of the Carnegie Steel Company, today said the men who went up on the boat were deputy sheriffs, and were sworn in by Deputy Sheriff Gray, who went upon the boat with them. He added that the company were not responsible for any trouble, as the whole matter was now in the hands of the Sheriff.

ber of new men on the boat. The moment it reached the shore a regular fusillade took

The Little Bill had an American flag on the bow. The men say it had assistance for the Pinkertons imprisoned in the barge. At all events a fusillade began in which the strikers, the Pinkertons and persons on the Little Bill took part. It continued ten minutes and was the men in the mill.

crowd and they bore down upon the Pinkertons with relentless force.
Nobody stopped to inquire whether the newcomers were deputy sheriffs, Pinkerton detectives or non-union laborers.
After the exchange of shots the crowd of the Pinkertons, whose name could not be learned, was very seriously wounded. A committee of the locked-out men is now scouring Homestead for ammunition.

Two unknowns were taken to their homes, some distance from Homestead, evidently badly hurt.

ANDREW CARNEGIE.

It is not known just who was shot on the boat. One man in particular was seen to drop as if instantly killed, but whether he was or not cannot be told at this writing (7 A. M.), as it is impossible to get aboard the boat.

CARNEGIE'S BARRICADE TORN DOWN.
The men are thoroughly aroused and declare that not one of the Pinkertons will be allowed to enter the works.
Before the arrival of the boats the men, fearing that the detectives would succeed in getting inside the works, made an onslaught on the fence and 100 feet of the inclosure was torn down.

H. C. FRICK.

Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Steel Association.
The moment the people on the bank caught a glimpse of the flotilla a crowd of them made a break down the road towards the works.
When the head of the line reached the city farm fence, which has been built out several feet into the water, fifty men or more used their shoulders as battering-rams, and almost in a twinkling had battered down the barrier.

Once through the fence the crowd poured along the steep embankment skirting the river fence of the Carnegie company, and despite the mud and the uneven character of the ground they made rapid headway.
It was a strangely silent crowd. Few words were spoken and these sprang from the lips of the women, who were apparently as anxious to participate in the conflict as their husbands, brothers and sons.

From Homestead to the pumphouse it is a good two miles; but all things considered, these half-dressed men and women made the journey in record-breaking time.
Once there, they gathered in one solid mass, the women, or at least the most of them, on the outskirts. The front rank of this solid wall of humanity stood at the water's very edge, and every moment the crowd grew in numbers and determination.

HAD DETERMINED TO FIGHT THEIR WAY THROUGH.

Slowly the tide brought her silent consors down the channel. Just below the Pencilly bridge she partly turned her prow towards the shore and then, amid the shrieks of steam whistles and the angry groans and hines from those gathered on the banks, the com-pacts of the boats stripped for action.
Each one of them was armed with a Winchester rifle and each rifle was loaded to kill.

Slowly the boat edged towards the landing, and when the keels of the barges grazed on the sand the grim faces of the invaders were within a few feet of their opponents, gathered on the shore.

There was an instant of awful silence, and then a bright flash and a sharp report announced that the first shot of the battle had been fired.

It also proved that the detectives had determined to take extreme measures, and, if necessary, fight their way to the mill.
Almost immediately after the first shot had
